25 September 2020

Privacy continues to be a hot topic for employers around the country and as the Office of the Privacy Commissioner has said, the new Privacy Act 2020 offers organisations a chance to "reset" and make sure they get things right.

This seminar addresses the upcoming Privacy Act 2020, with a particular focus on what employers need to know and do. Topics included:

- A summary of the key changes coming in the new Act
- Guidance on managing privacy breaches within your organisation, including when you need to make mandatory breach notifications and how to deal with any concurrent HR or disciplinary issues that may arise
- Tips on responding to Privacy Act requests, including from aggrieved employees
- Privacy and social media in employment.

Please contact a member of our team below if you would like to discuss how Buddle Findlay can work with you and your organisation.
